

Something there is, whose veiled creation was Before the earth and the sky began to be;
So silent, so aloof, so alone and self-contained.
It changes not, nor fails, but touches all:
It may be regarded as the Mother of all things.

TAO TE CHING